

ABSTRACT

Communicating a message using a self-contained communications device includes affixing a customized visual message to the communications device, recording a customized audio message to store on the communications device, storing the customized audio message
5 on the communications device; and playing the customized audio message stored on the communications device.

40176956.doc